New York, NY - May 5, 2008. BAREBRUSH.com invites all visual artists to submit art of the nude for the June 2008 N*des-of-the-Month calendar contest. Prizes. Deadline Friday, May 23, 2008.

Ilene Skeen, founder and CEO of barebrush, is pleased to announce Bart de Koning Gans, director of the Christopher Henry Gallery of New York City as guest curator.

The Christopher Henry Gallery showcases emerging and mid-career art with the singular mission to promote a higher standard in the contemporary art community. In 2006, gallery founder and director Christopher Henry curated the third barebrush virtual exhibition (November 2006), an early endorsement of the barebrush concept. Now after 18 months, barebrush returns, passing the baton to gallery director Bart de Koning Gans, a natural development. "I am very pleased and proud to have the Christopher Henry Gallery participate in barebrush once again," says barebrush CEO Ilene Skeen. "Chris was involved early on and Bart's interest in the project is no less welcome."

When asked what he would be looking for in the June show, Bart wrote:

I look for strong line work, concept of space and composition. Material is irrelevant, it is the final product that matters.

The deadline for contest entries is May 23. All artists who work in this controversial genre are encouraged submit their art . Art entered on or before May 23, 2008 will be automatically considered for both the June and July 2008 Nudes-of-the-Month contests. The curator for the July contest will be announced June 5th.
